Mark each cell against the dish's actual recipe, not against a similar dish — use a short code (e.g. C = contains, T = may contain traces) and print the key you use at the top of the sheet.

Re-check the whole matrix whenever a recipe, supplier or ingredient changes, not just on a fixed schedule.

This is a reference for staff, not a legal determination. Check your own jurisdiction's allergen labelling rules, and always flag a serious allergy to the kitchen directly.
